Inspiring. Software Story is designed to tell you why you should use and value the products in your organization. It uses a variety of graphic art techniques, clever animations, and heart-tugging stories to bring meaning and value to software. Why Software Story? Software Story takes an innovative approach to communicate the value of software: instead of talking at you, it chooses to tell you a story. It shows you that software is not simply information. Software is a medium. It creates community and culture. Software Story shows you what the value of software is, and what it will bring you as a team and organization. Software Story then gives you the practical tools to implement this insight and use software more effectively and efficiently. Features: Software Story is a multipurpose, multi-use, tool for communicating the value of software. It works well as a tool for understanding, as well as an engaging story for marketing. Software Story can be used for multiple purposes: Introducing software to your team - Show your team how software affects their daily lives. - Show how software makes things easier and better for you. - Show how software will change the way you communicate. Educating your team about software - Show your team what software is. - Show how you can use software to make everything you do more efficient. Marketing your product - Show how you can use software to generate new customers. - Show how you can bring a valued product to market. Design your product - Show your design. - Show why your design is beautiful. - Show how it is easy to use. Software Story is not an intro-level software training program. Software Story makes no assumptions about how you use software. It is designed to be used by all of your team, whether you're a developer, a product manager, a designer, or a user. It is a

Today, it's John Hodgman's magnificent short story "Why Do I Wear This Coat?" that is inspiring readers. In it, a fashion-obsessed man visits his elderly tailor, only to be told that he should wear this coat because it makes him look more manly. The style of the coat is also described as "very classic," "precise," "meticulous," "self-conscious" and "excessive." The only catch is that it's too expensive. Hodgman then asks: What is the best argument you ever gave against something? "Why Do I Wear This Coat?" Story continues Scroll down to see more comments below.
